From Tyler's Desk:

With God We Shall Do Valiantly!

When I played high school football, I learned to understand the meaning of the word "defeat." In fact, we only won one of our games. Every other game ended in defeat. Loosing gets old. It can be pretty discouraging. It's hard to get back out on the hot practice field on a hot Monday afternoon after working so hard and being defeated, again.

But that's football. It's just a game (the greatest game, but still just a game). The writer of Psalm 60 experienced defeat, on a much more severe level. This psalm was most likely written by David, who as the leader of the Israelite army, had just suffered a crushing defeat. The psalm begins "O God, you have rejected us, broken our defenses; you have been angry." The sinfulness of the Israelites had aroused God's anger, thus provoking Him to reject the Israelite army. God, in refusing to go out with the army had left them defenseless. They were horribly defeated. They had "seen hard things." They were in a state of confusion that could only be compared to a drunkard (vs. 3). What went wrong? Where did God go?

Have you ever felt like David did when he penned this psalm? Have you ever been horribly defeated? I'm not talking about being on a loosing sports team, or even something like loosing a job, but have you ever suffered defeat, spiritually speaking? Have you ever lined up in battle against Satan and been defeated? Have you ever tried to fight against temptation with your own strength, without turning to God in prayer and study for help? As the psalmist says in verse 11, "The help of man is useless" (NKJV). Going to battle without God is going to battle with no defenses. We will surely loose every time. Defeat can be frustrating. It can be difficult to get back up to fight again.

Although we have all suffered defeat from Satan and often repeatedly, we have been blessed with a psalm in which the inspired author feels our frustration, and then provides us with an answer.

After suffering a crushing defeat, David turns to God. He acknowledges that God has set up a banner for those who fear Him (vs. 4). The word banner refers to a flag or symbol which we can all see, even from a long distance, and rally around for strength. Even when we are a long way from God, having suffered defeat, he is standing there holding a flag, ready for us to rally behind him and march to victory.

The psalmist reminds us that God, in His holiness has promised to fight with His people, and has promised victory over His enemies (vs. 6-8). Even after suffering a horrible defeat, David knows that with God, victory is a sure thing. David confidently asks God for help against his foes, and then boldly proclaims "With God we shall do valiantly; it is He who will tread down our foes" (vs. 12).

If we try to fight against temptation, on our own power, without God, we will surely be horribly defeated every time. However, we know that even after a crushing defeat, we too can turn to God, and can be confident that "With God, we shall do valiantly".
