Making the Great Confession

Among the foundational acts of New Testament faith is what Scripture calls the confession. Often referred to as "the great confession," it is the heartfelt acknowledgment that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. This confession is not a mere formality or empty recitation, but a sincere declaration of faith that stands at the doorway of salvation and discipleship.

The apostle Paul plainly states, "If you confess with your mouth the Lord Jesus and believe in your heart that God has raised Him from the dead, you will be saved" (Romans 10:9). He continues, "For with the heart one believes unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation" (Romans 10:10). Here, belief and confession are inseparably joined. Faith that remains unspoken is incomplete; confession gives voice to belief and publicly aligns the believer with Christ.

One of the clearest biblical examples of the great confession is found in the account of the Ethiopian eunuch. As Philip preached Jesus to him, the eunuch asked, "See, here is water. What hinders me from being baptized?" Philip replied, "If you believe with all your heart, you may." The eunuch answered with the confession: "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God" (Acts 8:36-37). This confession immediately preceded his baptism, illustrating the New Testament pattern: hearing the gospel, believing, confessing Christ, repenting of sins, and being baptized for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38).

Jesus Himself emphasized the importance of confession. He declared, "Therefore whoever confesses Me before men, him I will also confess before My Father who is in heaven. But whoever denies Me before men, him I will also deny before My Father who is in heaven" (Matthew 10:32-33). The great confession is thus not optional. It is a decisive moment in which one openly identifies with Christ, regardless of the cost.

Confession is not viewed as a substitute for baptism, nor as a one-time statement that guarantees salvation apart from obedience. Rather, it is a biblical requirement that works together with faith and obedience. James reminds us that "faith by itself, if it does not have works, is dead" (James 2:17). The confession is a work of faith, not earning salvation, but responding to God's grace with humble submission.

Furthermore, making the great confession is not only about entering Christ; it sets the tone for the Christian life. Christians are called to continue confessing Christ daily through their words and conduct. Jesus warned that some honor God with their lips while their hearts are far from Him (Matthew 15:8). True confession must be matched by faithful living. Paul urged Timothy, "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, to which you were also called and have confessed the good confession in the presence of many witnesses" (1 Timothy 6:12). Timothy's confession marked a lifelong commitment to serve Christ.

In a world increasingly hostile to biblical truth, making the great confession requires courage. To declare "Jesus is Lord" is to reject self-rule and submit to His authority (Luke 6:46). It is to affirm His deity, His resurrection, and His right to reign over our lives. This confession unites believers with the church Christ purchased with His own blood (Acts 20:28).

May we never reduce the great confession to a ritualistic phrase. Instead, let us teach it as Scripture presents it: a sincere, public declaration of faith in Jesus Christ, made with the heart, spoken with the mouth, and lived out in obedience. When one makes this confession and follows Christ in baptism, they step into the grace of God and begin a life devoted to Him. May every confession we make truly reflect our allegiance to the risen Lord.

All of Me

Lord, guide my feet that I may walk
The narrow road with You
In the path that's shining more and more
With the perfect day in view.
In body, soul and spirit
I surrender ALL of me
So the light within may shine without
And all the world may see.
